

The Education Department at the University of California, Santa Cruz invites applications for the position of Program Director of Teacher Education. We are particularly interested in applicants who have previous experience in teacher education programs and are knowledgeable about innovative approaches to teacher development.

The Department prepares approximately 65 credential students for teaching in K-12 California public schools. The program, which also grants a Masters of Arts in Education, operates on a year-round (summer to summer) schedule. Under the direction of the Department Chair, and in consultation with the Faculty Director, the successful candidate will be responsible for day-to-day program components; reviewing applications for Teacher Supervisors and Lecturers; overseeing student teaching placements in county schools; coordinating the California teaching performance assessment (EdTPA); monitoring student progress; assisting with report writing and long-term planning; and adhering to the California's state credentialing guidelines. The selected candidate will also supervise and evaluate approximately six Teacher Supervisors. The MA/Credential program is supported by a dedicated Credential Analyst and department staff. The successful candidate will also work with the Faculty Director, Teacher Education Committee (TEC), and the Education Department faculty in assessing program strengths and envisioning and implementing improvements and reforms.

The University of California, Santa Cruz, an Hispanic Serving Institution, serves a mix of suburban and rural schools in which many students are immigrants or the children of immigrants. We are committed to inquiry-based pedagogies for preparing teachers to improve the education of linguistically and culturally diverse students and promote equity and social justice.
