

The UCSC Education Department presents:

English as a Foreign Language Teacher Education/ Development in the Context of Educational Reforms in China

Dr. Hu is an Associate Professor in the School of Foreign Languages & International Studies at Hunan University, China. Her research focuses on English as a Foreign Language (EFL) teacher education/development, Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) in teachers' continual professional development (CPD), educational reforms/innovation, and college English teaching and learning.

Zhiwen Hu, Ph.D.

Wednesday, October 21, 2015
10:00 A.M. – 11:00 A.M.
with Q & A to follow

McHenry 0266 (Ground Floor)

Brown bag lunch with speaker from 11:30-12:30 in McHenry 3170

In the colloquium, Dr. Hu will first describe a profile of national education and teacher education/development in China. Then she will share a specific curriculum for English teacher education in a teacher training university, and explain how it is designed and implemented. Her own research on ICT in language teachers' CPD and an online China Language Educators Network (CLEN) will be introduced as well.